

Dwarf's magical adventure

Once upon a time, there was a lonely dwarf named Shooty. He was the 8th dwarf. He got kicked – out from “ The Seven Dwarfs”, because he was a hunter. So, he went to live in the forest. He built himself a house with fancy floorboards inside and lived calmly.

But a few months later, he went hunting and saw a weird creature. The creature was astray. He looked at it for a few moments and threw a net over it. He put it in his wagon and went to town's market. He wanted to sell a lot of things: fancy wallpapers, table lamps, ashtrays and also his weird creature.

Everyone wanted that creature, so Shooty got a lot of money when he had sold it. He bought himself a treat for the money he had got - a rocking chair and then went home feeling happy.

He thought about that creature for the whole night. Next day he wanted to go to the library, but no one let him in. Dwarf decided to break into the library. He damaged the door's keyhole, but that didn't help. The Dwarf was smart, so he climbed onto the windowsill and went in through the window. He read about the weird creature. He took a book from a dusty bookcase and read stories about magical creatures. Dwarf realized his mistake. He had never heard stories about unicorns before, but he sold one yesterday. Shooty started beating his head against the wall, until there was a hole in it. He ran to the market and found a person who bought the unicorn. He didn't want to sell it back. The Dwarf followed that person to his home. The Unicorn was kept in a cage outside the house.

Shooty stole his unicorn and came back home with it. “ The Seven Dwarfs “ were happy to hear that Shooty had saved the unicorn and accepted him back to the team, because he was cool and had a unicorn. THE EIGHT DWARFS AND THE UNICORN LIVEDD HAPPILY EVER AFTER.
